

LAWRENCE COUNTY NATIVE PROMOTED TO BRANCH MANAGER IN FIRST FARMERS LAWRENCEBURG OFFICE

LAWRENCEBURG, Tenn. (August 17, 2009) – Miriam Green, a native of Lawrence County and 24-year veteran of First Farmers & Merchants Bank, has been named Branch Manager II at the Locust Avenue branch office of First Farmers & Merchants Bank in Lawrenceburg.

Green moves from the First Farmers Bank in Loretto where she had been Administrative Assistant.

“Miriam has been a tireless and wonderful advocate and employee for the bank ever since the office became a First Farmers office in 1985,” said Larry D. Brown, Lawrence County Senior Banking Executive for First Farmers. “As a lifelong resident of Lawrence County, she knows the people of this area and their financial needs and she knows how to build enduring relationships with customers. She’ll do a fine job leading this office as it continues supporting its customers and the Lawrenceburg community.”

Green joined the then Bank of Loretto in 1979 as a bookkeeper. Six years later, the bank became an office of First Farmers Bank and she was appointed loan processor. Over the years, she’s held other bank positions including teller, customer service representative and assistant branch manager.

As Branch Manager II, she will oversee all operations for the branch office and report to Brown.

She graduated magna cum laude in Business Administration from Columbia State Community College and is a graduate of The Southeastern School of Banking at Vanderbilt University’s Owen School of Management. She lives in St. Joseph with her husband, Joseph, and has a daughter Allison, who works for SAS Institute in Cary, North Carolina, and a son, Raleigh, who is a senior at the University of North Alabama.
